Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Demartini (5333417).

Demartini (figure 4) shows a corner deflector comprising a generally planar member having an upper edge and a lower edge, the member having first and second segments (42, 43, figure 4) being separated by a fold line, the fold line extending from the top edge to the bottom edge, at least one flange (45) extending outwardly in a directly substantially perpendicular to the planar portion, each of the segments having one inwardly extending flange and one outwardly extending flange extending from the bottom edge, the first and second segments are symmetrical about the fold line, the deflector is formed of a metallic material, the top edge has an arcuate outline (figure 1), the deflector being used in combination with an eaves trough, a gutter having two mutually perpendicular sections, the segments lying in mutually perpendicular planes.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Art Unit: 3637

4. Claims 6-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Demartini (5333417) in view of Martin et al.

Demartini shows all the claimed limitations except for the eaves trough having a gutter guard, the gutter guard being foraminous covering a top of the gutter, at least one inwardly extending flanges being secured to the gutter guards.

Martin et al shows a foraminous gutter guard covering a top of the gutter, the guard being securely attached to the roof.

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to modify Demartini's structure to show eaves trough having a gutter guard, the gutter guard being foraminous covering a top of the gutter, at least one inwardly extending flanges being secured to the gutter guards because having gutter guard attaching to the gutter would prevent the falling of debris into the gutter and prevent the clogging of the gutter as taught by Martin et al, and having the inwardly extending flanges secured to the gutter guards would provide for the secured and easy fastening of the deflector to the roof structure.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. The prior art shows different water deflecting device.
